Can we count it??? Yes we can!!

Can we count it??? Yes we can!!!

This issue is another one of the confusing things about English grammar. As the title above suggests, if it can be counted, then it is a countable noun. The definition of 'countable' is:

An object or thing which can be counted. It can be singular or plural and can be preceded in the singular with 'a or an'

5 apples. Countable.

3 cars. Countable.

6 chairs.

10 cats.

Grammatical expressions which can be used with countable nouns are:

A – An – The (Singular)

Some – a lot of – many – plenty of – several – some – a few

Examples of singular and plural countable nouns.

There is a dog in the garden.

There are (some) dogs in the garden.
